Which hospital has the shortest ER wait time?

- Data was taken at least once on 29 of 31 days in August
- Screenshots taken three times daily: 9 a.m., 3 p.m. and 9 p.m.

With one month in the books, Alberta Health Services' online wait times show a clear leader in Calgary's emergency room stays.

Beginning Aug. 1, Metro Calgary took screen shots of the Alberta Health Services online wait times website three times daily, capturing wait times in the morning, afternoon and evening hours.

While the overall wait times based on snapshots of those three times averaged 90 minutes, the Foothills Medical Centre led the way for the city's three main trauma centres, with an average ER wait time of 81 minutes, according to the online screenshots.

The Alberta Children's Hospital did have the best wait times overall, with an average wait of 67 minutes.

Rockyview Hospital in the southwest posted an average wait time of 104 minutes and the Peter Lougheed Hospital in the city's northeast was the longest average wait at 107 mins.

According to the data, wait times were substantially shorter in the morning, with a dramatic peak in the afternoon, before subsiding slightly at night.

While AHS officials were not made available for comment on these specific results, despite requests made over two days, Health Minister Gene Zwozdesky, AHS CEO Dr. Chris Eagle, and ER doctor Dr. Francois Belanger did speak with reporters during their health update Thursday and touched on ER wait times.

"We're pleased with the results that we're seeing in the emergency rooms," said Zwozdesky.

Zwozdesky quoted an 81 per cent reduction in Emergency In Patients (EIPs) as having a dramatic effect on overall 'through-put' for ER patients.

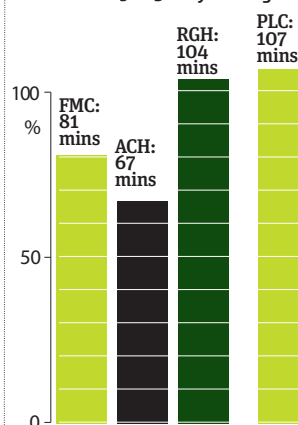

Dr. Belanger said finding appropriate spaces for patients, including those in long term care beds, is a key element in reducing emergency wait times.

An AHS spokesperson did tell Metro that a variety of factors, including type and volume of cases on any given day, could affect the overall emergency room wait time.

► Students fear decisions by Calgary universities to not renew their Access Copyright agreements will mean having to buy more textbooks and increase their education's cost.

Students could face steeper textbook bills

- Universities pull out of agreement with national copyright organization
- Students could be required to purchase additional material on their own

JEREMY NOLAÏS
@METRONEWS.CA

Student representatives at Calgary's largest university fear the fallout from a national copyright feud could pile added textbook bills onto students.

Both the University of Calgary and Mount Royal University have ceased their agreements with Access Copyright, a national organization that obtains legal access to academic material in exchange for an annual fee, citing fee increases.

Now, the institutions are working to gain access to course content through their own means in hopes they can still provide students with traditional course packets and handouts.

If they are unsuccessful, students may be required to purchase more material on their own, said Ola Mohajer, academic vice-president at the U of C Students' Union.

"Course-packs allow students to save a lot of money ... the worry is we will be forced to by multiple textbooks where we typically would have only had to buy one," she said.

Copyright material

- Copyright adviser Rebecca Cleaver said some items have already been pulled from standard course packs at Mount Royal University and alternative material is being sought.
- Despite multiple inquiries,

Roanie Levy, general counsel for Access Copyright, confirmed the Calgary institutions will be impacted by their decision as soon as the upcoming fall semester. Rebecca Cleaver, copyright adviser at Mount Royal University, no administrative representative from the University of Calgary was made available Thursday. In a letter last month, university vice-provost Thomas Hickerson did advise students that efforts are being made to gain independent access to course material.

urged students to stay calm, noting staff has been working since January to gain independent, legal access to academic material.

"We are doing our best to get the best results for our students and faculty," she said.

Fire crews rescue man from burning building

Calgary firefighters worked swiftly to pull a man from a burning building Thursday afternoon.

Crews arrived on scene at a townhouse complex in the 60 block of Storybrook Garden around 12:30 p.m. to find smoke billowing from it.

They began an aggressive attack and found an unconscious male inside on the second floor, according to fire officials.

The victim was quickly carried out to an awaiting ambulance and had begun to regain consciousness en route to hospital, said fire spokesperson Brian McAsey.

"It was a very dangerous situation," McAsey said. "There was burning material all over the place."

EMS spokesperson Ryan Collyer said it is believed the unconscious individual, likely in his 50s, had suffered some kind of medical incident before the fire broke out.

Collyer could not specify the type of condition plaguing the individual, but said it was likely the reason he was unable to exit the building under his own power.

Crews also pulled two cats from the complex and overall damaged was contained to the interior. No other injuries were reported and an investigation into the cause of the fire is underway. ● JEREMY NOLAÏS

HOLGER, JONATHAN AND NOAH
AS TOLD TO MICHELLE LINDSTROM

Holger can't explain the strong bond he felt to his adopted son, Noah, even before meeting him more than a decade ago.

"The only thing you have are some photos, a name and a medical report. It is amazing how those photos really become a part of your life," he says.

Holger, 39, shared the experience with his husband Jonathan, 47, and both say waiting the two years was the hardest part.

Their situation was more complicated than most: Jonathan, an American, and Holger, a German, were an unmarried, same-sex couple living in Salzburg, Austria, and trying to adopt a child from China, which doesn't allow gay couples to adopt.

Jonathan went alone to pick up Noah in China, avoiding potential complications regarding his sexuality.

"I was actually the last one in our family to meet Noah in person," says Holger.

When Noah was three, the couple moved to Calgary where Jonathan had accepted a teaching position at the University of Calgary.

"Moving to Alberta — which I thought was one of the most conservative provinces in Canada — I really expected prejudice against same-sex parents," Holger says. "But we have never had one incident of discrimination because of our situation."

▶ Jonathan, Holger and their son, Noah.

Jonathan remembers going to their community playground when Noah, now 11, was a toddler. They offered no apologies for being different; they simply wanted their son to meet other children in the area.

"When you put yourself out there and say, 'This is it,' " says Jonathan, "you don't have to explain anything, just — this is our family."

As for parental challenges, they don't feel anything has been unique to them as same-sex or adoptive parents. It's just life and luckily they've always been able to count on the support of family and friends.

Holger's and Jonathan's parenting styles are similar and they try to answer Noah's questions about anything, openly and honestly. Right now, those questions are mostly about girls.

It's simple, says Jonathan, "If you give your child love, they will thrive, regardless of the parent configuration."

ERs in good health: Province

The Alberta government has given itself high marks in meeting its goals for improving health care, including tripling its target for new surgeries and reducing the number of people stranded in emergency rooms.

But critics accuse Health Minister Gene Zwozdesky of cherry-picking statistics, saying wait times for knee and hip surgeries are still too long and too many older patients remain stuck in hospitals waiting for continuing care beds.

Zwozdesky said the province has met 18 of the 19 benchmarks it set out for itself in its five-year plan. Some goals have been exceeded, such as the number of surger-► 360 hospital beds have been added to the system, according to the update.

► NDP health critic Rachel Notley called the report a "back-patting, pre-election document".

emergency room practices have improved, nearly 500 patients remain in acute-care beds awaiting long-term care. He called Zwozdesky's claims "tepid improvements" and "tiny steps."

Liberal officials point to hospital statistics showing that even though patients are moving faster through emergency rooms, most hospitals still aren't meeting Alberta Health's targets.

Booze, crowding blamed for riot

► Crowd ballooned out of control prior to Stanley Cup game: report
 ► Communication was lacking

PHYLICIA TORREVILLAS

 METRO CANADA IN VANCOUVER

Police were overwhelmed and lost control of the massive crowd gathered on Vancouver's streets during the June 15 Stanley Cup riot, according to a report released Thursday.

An independent review entitled "The Night the City Became a Stadium" — authored by John Furlong and Douglas Keefe — found police lost control of the large crowd, many of them fuelled by alcohol, hours before Game 7.

The report also found that too many people were allowed in the temporary fan zones. The main viewing area on West Georgia Street was designed to safely contain about 34,000 people, not the 155,000 people that showed up.

The authors suggested the VPD should've better

Report findings

A report on the Vancouver riots found a number of problems, including:

- Preparedness: Crowd was larger than expected and arrived earlier than police had anticipated. This led to officers being overwhelmed.
- Communication: Commander's radio didn't work, preventing riot police from getting in place. Batteries for loudspeakers also hadn't been charged.

anticipated fans arriving earlier for Game 7 and prepared for potential problems, and the city should've had better safety planning for large scale events.

The report outlined 53 recommendations to ensure safe celebrations in the future.

Arctic shipwreck hands over historic bounty

Archeologists diving on a 19th-century shipwreck have brought back a small cache of artifacts they hope will tell them more about the lost Franklin expedition.

With youthful enthusiasm, veteran staff from Parks Canada showed off items plucked from the deck of HMS Investigator just eight metres beneath the freezing Arctic waters.

The former merchant ship made two voyages to the Arctic in search of Sir John Franklin's storied expedition, but was abandoned in 1853 after becoming stuck in the once-impenetrable Arctic ice. The ship was found last year in Mercy Bay, off Banks Island in the Beaufort Sea.

A team of six divers, including one from the U.S. Parks Service, conducted more than 100 forays, aided by July's midnight sun, under waters ranging in temperature from -2 C to 2 C.

What they found astounded even the most experienced among them.

Artifacts — including the shoes and a bent musket, its trigger guard altered to accommodate winter gloves — lay exposed on the ship's decks and strewn on the sandy bottom.

Meanwhile, the search for Franklin's expedition continues.

Motive behind baby's assault still a mystery

► Attacker released on bail before assault ► Attempted murder charge dropped due to lack of proof

METRO CANADA IN WINNIPEG

No one will ever know why Nikita Eaglestick abducted a 13-month-old Winnipeg girl and repeatedly smashed her face into the pavement.

But the 21-year-old mentally disabled woman now faces the prospect of spending six years in prison after pleading guilty to child abduction and assault causing bodily harm in connection to the Sept. 1, 2009, attack.

The assault "was so horrendous that it's actually difficult to find words to describe it," prosecutor Jennifer Mann told Court of Queen's Bench Justice Deborah McCawley.

Eaglestick, then 19, was drunk at a party at the home of the victim's mother. She was seen walking away with a bundle in her arms. Not long after, a man living nearby said he heard a "weird, high-pitched noise" and saw a woman striking an object against the pavement, Mann said. As he got closer he saw it was a baby.

The woman ran off and was arrested minutes later. Mann said she couldn't offer any explanation for the attack, adding Eaglestick was heavily intoxicated.

The baby has since made a full recovery.

Harper: It's back to work in Libya

► Sanctions lifted ► Now Canadian firms can do business there again

Canadian companies can go back to work in Libya.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper says Canada is lifting the sanctions it imposed on Libya because dictator Moammar Gadhafi is no longer in power.

"Canada is taking this first step to remove our unilateral sanctions that were put in place against the Gadhafi regime in order to assist the Libyan people transition justly, safely and securely toward a democracy," Harper said.

Harper's announcement followed a similar move by the European Union and comes as he and other world leaders meet in Paris to chart Libya's future.

The sanctions prevented Canadian companies from doing any business with the Gadhafi government. Sun-

Hillary hits out

► Fight on: U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton sent that message to Libyan rebels Thursday.

► "We must see our military mission through to its conclusion," she said in Paris.

► "Coalition military operations should continue as long as civilians remain under threat of attack."

cor Energy and SNC Lavalin are among Canadian companies with operations in the oil-rich country.

But Canada's hands are tied when it comes to releasing $2 billion in frozen Libyan assets held by Canadian institutions. The freeze is in place because of broader UN sanctions.

Gadhafi vows to fight: 'Let Libya burn'

In two defiant broadcasts from hiding, Moammar Gadhafi warned Thursday that tribes loyal to him are well-armed and preparing for battle.

"We won't surrender again — we are not women, we will keep fighting," said Gadhafi, his voice recognizable.

Gadhafi's first broadcast, on Syrian-based TV, came as rebels said they were closing in on him.

Gadhafi said the tribes in Sirte and Bani Walid are armed and "there is no way they will submit."

"The battle will be long," he warned. "Let Libya burn."

In his second audio address of Thursday, Gadhafi said: "We will fight them everywhere. We will burn the ground under their feet." His measured tones on a Syrian TV station contrasted with his stridency earlier in the day.

Rebels have been hunting for Gadhafi since they swept into Tripoli Aug. 20.

Prostitution probe close to Italian PM

► Man has business ties to embattled leader ► Silvio Berlusconi not under investigation in extortion case

Italian police arrested a businessman Thursday on charges of allegedly extorting money from Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi to ensure the man's co-operation in a probe over recruiting prostitutes to attend wild parties at Berlusconi's home.

Giampaolo Tarantini and his wife Angela Devenuto were picked up in Rome on Thursday morning, and a third suspect is being sought, police in Naples said. Berlusconi is not under investigation in this case.

Tarantini has admitted he paid a high-end prostitute, Patrizia D'Addario, and other women to attend parties at Berlusconi's residences, but insists the prime minister didn't know. Tarantini is currently under investigation in Bari for allegedly aiding and abetting prostitution.

Naples Prosecutor Francesco Greco said Berlusconi had paid the Tarantini family's legal and housing costs, with the end result aimed at securing Tarantini's co-operation in the Bari prostitution investigation.

In a telephone interview with The Associated Press in Rome, Greco alleged that the payment was aimed at ensuring that Tarantini enters a plea bargain rather than letting the case go to trial. Such a move would limit the publication of possibly embarrassing telephone intercepts concerning the women who went to Berlusconi's parties.

Greco didn't specify the amount paid, but the Panorama news magazine, which broke news of the investigation last week, said Tarantini received $722,000 and subsequent monthly payments from the premier.

The alleged middleman, Valter Lavitola, is being sought.

► Berlusconi has repeatedly blamed his legal woes on probes by prosecutors he contends are left-leaning sympathizers intent on ruining his political career.

► Naples chief prosecutor, Domenico Lepore, told reporters that with the extortion probe Berlusconi won't be able to depict himself as the victim of prosecutors.

► "This time, no," Lepore said. "It is we who are defending him" from alleged extortion in a case in which the premier is seen as victim.

Wikileaks cables leaked online

Uncensored copies of Wikileaks' massive tome of U.S. State Department cables was circulating freely across the Internet Thursday, a dramatic development that leaves U.S. sources vulnerable to embarrassment and potential retribution.

Wikileaks has blamed Britain's Guardian newspaper for the breach, saying that an investigative journalist had revealed the password needed to unlock the files in a book published earlier this year.

Guardian journalists said that sloppy security

"Once Wikileaks has these documents in its possession, it loses control and information gets out whether they intend (it) to or not."

DEFENCE DEPARTMENT SPOKESMAN,
COL. DAVE LAPAN

at Julian Assange's website helped expose the cables to the world.

In a 1,600-word-long editorial posted to the Internet on Thursday, WikiLeaks accused the Guardian's investigative reporter David Leigh of betrayal, saying that his disclosure had jeopardized months of "careful work" Wikileaks had undertaken to redact and publish the cables.

Leigh and the Guardian have both denied wrongdoing.

Leigh added that he doesn't "see how a member of the public could access such a file anyway, unless a Wikileaks or ex-Wikileaks person tells them where it is located and what the file was called."

Too much buzz, not enough buy

► Smartphone use is growing, but mobile e-commerce is slow to take off ► Tiny screens, security holding it back

When it comes to mobile shopping, so far there's more buzz than buy.

As the number of people who use iPhones and other smartphones grows, companies selling everything from hardware to high fashion are touting all the new applications they're rolling out that allow shoppers to do anything from check a store's inventory while in the dressing room to ordering prescriptions.

Retailers are betting that selling their wares on a device that people carry around all day can encourage consumers to spend money during an economic downturn.

But so far, consumers mostly are using their phones to look up locations and compare prices and stopping short of tapping the "buy" button. Why? In part because they find it hard to shop on the tiny screens and they don't quite think it's safe to input their credit card information into their phone.

Mobile purchases are growing faster than online sales, which are increasing at around 10 per cent a year. But mobile commerce is expected to account for $6 billion US, or just two per cent of overall

Apple accused of pollution in China

Apple is defending itself against a fresh barrage of criticism from Chinese environmental activists over alleged pollution by the manufacturers who make its iconic iPhones, iPads and other products.

In a report issued Wednesday, a group of nongovernmental organizations accused the technology giant of violating its own corporate responsibility standards by using suppliers it said its investigations found are violating the law and endangering public health by discharging heavy metals and other toxins.

Responding to the report, Apple said Thursday that it was committed to

"driving the highest standards of social responsibility" in its supply chain.

The latest report explores in more detail findings of an earlier one that took Apple and other big electronics makers to task for alleged violations of labour and environmental standards.

Scandals

Policing supply chains is a headache for big brand-name companies, given the countless scandals over labour, environmental, safety and quality problems brought on by outsourcing to factories in China and elsewhere.

Canada's banks pull in high numbers

► But, RBC brings it down with a $1.6-billion loss during the quarter

Strong retail banking numbers helped Canada's six largest banks make a combined $4.56 billion in profits in the third quarter, with several of them posting double-digit improvements that beat analyst estimates.

But the combined profits were about 11 per cent lower than a year ago, as Royal Bank pulled down the industry tally with a major writedown of its U.S. retail banking operations, which are being sold.

TD Bank was the last big bank to report its results for the quarter yesterday, with profits up 22 per cent compared with a year ago. It boosted its dividend by two cents to 68 cents per share. CIBC also bumped its dividend higher earlier in the week, up three cents to 90 cents per share.

Craig Fehr, a financial services analyst at Edward Jones, said earnings growth for the banks as a whole were reasonable given that the Canadian economy shrank in the quarter, but added that Canada's banks are cushioned by their diversified operations around the world that generate revenue.

"It's really an environment where we're seeing a defined growth strategy that's quite different across the banking landscape, so each bank is going to forge their own future here in the next several quarters in terms of defining their growth strategies."

He added that the banks generally showed strength in domestic banking, but that the pace of growth in the segment is beginning to slow as more Canadians take heed of warnings about taking out loans as federal officials say consumers are racking up ballooning debts.

Woman sues Microsoft

Microsoft Corp. is being sued by a woman who alleges the world's largest software maker illegally tracks people whose mobile devices run its Windows Phone 7 operating software. The lawsuit was filed by Rebecca Cousineau. She notes that Microsoft tells users they can turn off location tracking, which is a feature in the camera application on phones running Windows Phone 7. But she claims the software keeps tracking users' locations even after they turn off the feature. Cousineau seeks an order stopping Microsoft from gathering user data after they opt out of it.

Discover growing its student loan business

Discover Financial Services said it is buying another $2.5 billion US in private student loans from Citigroup Thursday.

The deal comes months after Discover bought Citi's private student loan business, The Student Loan Corp., and a portfolio of loans and other assets totalling $4.2 billion.

The price for the deal is roughly 99 per cent of the face value of the loans, which translates to about $2.48 billion. The purchase is expected to close by Sept. 30. Discover held $52.51 billion in total loans, including credit card balances, as of May 31, the end of its fiscal second quarter.

Budgeting can relieve school loans: RBC

▶ Graduates have average debt of $27,000: Canadian student group

Students often take it for granted they will graduate with a "D" for debt after college or university, and worry about having enough money while they're in school.

A third of first-year post-secondary students expect to have significant debt when they graduate, according to a recent RBC Royal Bank poll on student savings and spending.

The poll also found that 54 per cent were worried about having enough money for school.

As academic an exercise as it may seem, budgeting can make a difference in terms of students "stressing" about their money, said Kavita Joshi, director of student banking at RBC.

Although families can have different approaches, students can begin to understand the importance of saving and budgeting when they get part-time jobs before they go off to post-secondary education.

"If you plan, you can plan to spend," Joshi said. "That's the key."

The problem is that not a lot of students stick with budgeting.

RBC is reaching out to students on its Facebook page and has an online tool that students can use called myFinancetracker to track spending in specific areas.

Worth Mentioning

A visit by a Chinese leader meant to spread goodwill has instead left Hong Kong fuming.

In the two weeks since the visit, journalists have taken to the street in protest. Professors have taken out newspaper ads and students demanded the police chief resign.

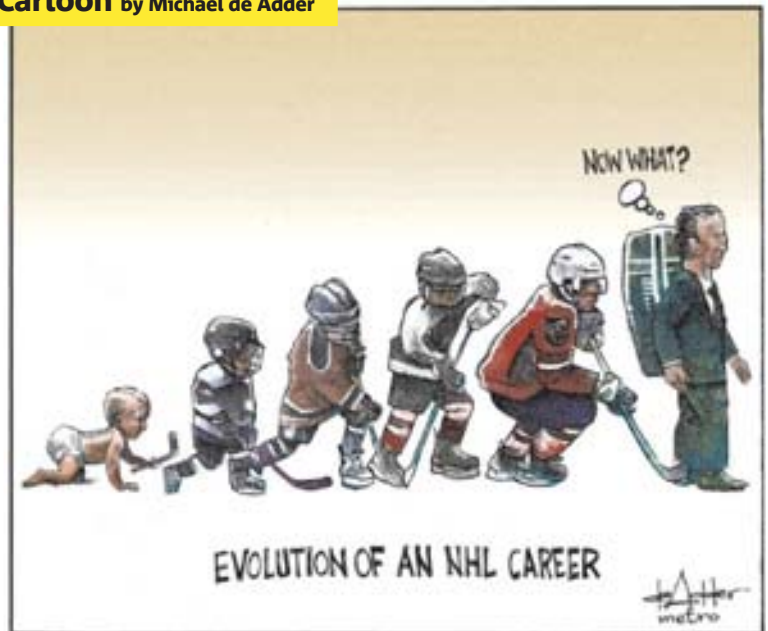

The uproar is the latest clash of cultures between the authoritarian government in Beijing and Hong Kong, the former British colony returned to China's control but allowed to keep its capitalism, civil liberties and Western-style legal system.

Sparking the outrage were the security arrangements put on for Vice Premier Li Keqiang, a rising star in the Chinese leadership. Hong Kong's vigorous press complained they were kept far away from Li during the few events they were allowed to cover. While such tactics are standard procedure in mainland China, Chinese leaders are usually more careful not to alienate free-wheeling Hong Kong.

The heavy-handed security has served to heighten concern in Hong Kong that its autonomy is being eroded by a mainland government.

What happens in Vegas stays in Vegas.

The U.S. attorney in Nevada says a German traveller was caught with more than a kilogram (2.2 pounds) of cocaine encased in more than 80 plastic pellets in his digestive system while trying to board a flight from Las Vegas to London.

Christopher Adiegwu was indicted Tuesday in federal court on a count of possession of cocaine with intent to distribute.

Arraignment is set for Sept. 9. He faces up to 40 years in prison and a $5 million US fine if convicted.

A local TV station reported that U.S. customs agents took note of the 43-year-old's suspicious behaviour at McCarran International Airport and thought he might be smuggling drugs.

KTNV-TV says after they searched him and didn't find anything, they took him to hospital for X-rays, when the pellets were revealed. He was given laxatives to pass the pellets.

Court records identify the man as a German citizen and native of Nigeria who was travelling under a visa waiver. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fall into Oscar season

- The serious films of fall are replacing the breezy flicks of summer
- Richard Crouse and Mark Breslin weigh in on the Academy Award favourites

Richard: Mark, the silly season is pretty much over. That should mean an end to superhero stories, remakes, reboots and reimaginings and a beginning to Oscar season, right? It seems like the studios want to remind us of the balmy days of summer because it appears to me there's still lots of silly stuff on the way. When I see movies like Paranormal Activity 3 and Johnny English Reborn on the schedule it feels like summer in October.

MB: Richard, come on, the theatre owners need to pay their rent. And that means popcorn sales. Which means sequels, remakes and all the rest. But have no fear! Leonardo DiCaprio will be donning the fat suit to play J Edgar Hoover. What could be more original — and weird — than that, unless it was Bob Dylan starring in a Ben Johnson biopic. Surely there's some stuff coming up that has piqued your interest...

RC: Absolutely. Wedged in between remakes like The Thing are some Oscar contenders like Moneyball, Ides of March, and Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy but I think the movie I'm most excited to see is My Week with Marilyn. It's the story of Marilyn Monroe and Laurence Olivier and their tumultuous relationship as they made The Prince and the Showgirl. It's the kind of turning the camera on itself that Hollywood does really well.

MB: That does sound good! I'm most excited about The Descendants, which pairs George Clooney and Alexander Payne, who directed Sideways, in a Hawaii location. I'm also jazzed about David Cronenberg's new movie, A Dangerous Method, which imagines a love triangle among Freud, Jung, and a hot female patient. Freud and Jung rarely are seen in the same movie, but Cronenberg's got a lot of clout these days. Interestingly, these are all autumn releases. The Christmas slate looks kind of tepid to me. What do you think?

RC: Tepid! Not with A Very Harold & Kumar Christmas topping my Christmas list. Looks hilarious. On the other end of the scale is The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo. If anyone can improve on the originals, it's David Fincher.

Preview. Borrowed ideas

► The Three Musketeers is set for an Oct. 21 release.

Borrowing from an old movie or remaking it entirely isn't always a bad thing. As a matter of fact, these formulas keep getting repeated because we keep paying good money to see them! Here are some plots that may seem vaguely familiar.

Killer Elite (Open Road Films) Sept. 23
When is Jason Statham ever NOT a skilled killer on a mission to knock off some dudes?

This time, he's out to avenge his mentor, played by Robert De Niro.

The Thing (Universal) Oct. 7th
A prequel to the 1982 John Carpenter film of the same name.

Paranormal Activity 3 (Paramount) Oct. 21
Why are horror films always the easiest to make dozens of sequels for?

The Three Musketeers (Summit) Oct. 21
This differentiates itself with improved special effects and Christoph Waltz.

Tower Heist (Universal) Nov. 4
Billing itself as "an urban Ocean's 11" this heist film starring Ben Stiller, Eddie Murphy and Matthew Broderick could be ridiculous fun or a full-on disaster.

But we're pulling for the former.

The Muppets (Disney) Nov. 23
There's nothing wrong with reviving the ever-charming muppets, this time with a script written by co-star Jason Segel.

Fall Movie Preview. Ripped from the headlines

Does being “the movie of our time” always translate into big box office bucks?

The studios are hoping so with these thrillers that are all closely related, sometimes unnervingly so, to current events.

Contagion

(Warner Bros.) Sept. 9
This ensemble thriller takes the panicked outbreak of the Avian flu in 2009 and twists it into the realization of our worst nightmares. Steven Soderbergh directs.

Moneyball

(Columbia) Sept. 23
Baseball movie based on the Oakland A's general manager Billy Beane's groundbreaking methods for drafting team members.

Take comfort, ladies. Brad Pitt stars as Beane alongside previously plump Jonah Hill, Robin Wright and Phillip Seymour Hoffman.

Margin Call

(Lionsgate) Oct. 21
This thriller will likely capture the desperate atmosphere of the 2009 financial crisis in a way that Oliver Stone tried and failed at with Wall Street 2: Money Never Sleeps.

More directly based on the crash, director J.C. Chandor's first film stars Zachary Quinto, Stanley Tucci and Kevin Spacey.

The Ides of March

(Columbia) Oct. 7th
Based on the play Faragut North, this political thriller depicts the manipulations behind the scenes of a presidential campaign loosely based on that of Howard Dean.

The hot factor is turned way up with Ryan Gosling and George Clooney starring.

The Skin I Live In

(Sony) Oct. 14
One of the most highly anticipated releases of the fall will be Pedro Almodovar's thriller about a demented plastic surgeon who experiments on a human subject.

Martha Marcy May Marlene

Get to know Kenny Wormald

► Star of Footloose reboot talks about the pressure of stepping out in Kevin Bacon's dancing shoes

HEIDI PATALANO
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

Step aside, Kevin Bacon. Kenny Wormald is about to reinvent what the world thinks of when they hear the word Footloose. Well, actually he's not that brash. Wormald just wants to make sure he doesn't dishonour Bacon, who first inhabited the role of Ren McCormack in 1984's original dance epic. As a seasoned dancer, the 26-year-old Boston native was excited to take on the role for its 2011 reboot, but is holding his breath for the film's release.

"Now that I've completed the film and I've seen it, the pressure is more on whether the world is going to accept me as that character," he says. "But I was a huge fan of the original and I knew how close to the heart people held this film. You just want to do good for them and do good by Kevin [Bacon]."

Since Wormald is relatively new on the Hollywood scene, we asked the former dancer for Justin Timberlake a few random questions in order to get to know him better.

What's the best advice you've ever been given?

You've got two ears and one mouth. You should listen twice as much as you talk.

Marc Anthony told me that when I was dancing for J. Lo.

Did Justin Timberlake ever give you good advice?

No he never told me what to do but he showed me through action, how to handle being a megastar...just being a humble dude and keeping your family close and saying thank you to everyone. He is literally loved by everyone around him. That is something that I strive for and I believe that will help you stick around in this business for a long time.

If you had to eat at one fast food chain for the rest of your life, which one would it be?

In and Out Burger is kind of my go-to. It would suck for ► Kenny Wormald is reprising Kevin Bacon's classic role in a modern take on Footloose.

your whole life because it's only burgers but that being said, you don't feel that bad because it's good quality meat and it's real potatoes. What reality show do you not usually admit to watching? Project Runway. I've been around some girls before and it was on and I kind of got stuck watching it. I might've been by myself one time and changing the channel, it was on again and I watched it. Reality TV is kinda stupid for the most part, but they're actually talented.

Do you have a favourite word?

Lately we've been saying, "done." Like your friend is calling you saying, "hey bud you wanna go see a movie in 30?" "Done." ...which is now becoming "dunzo."

At a party you'll find me...

Making the best playlist possible because usually when I go to my friend's house, the music sucks and I'm immediately trying to get on his iTunes.

Jamie Bell gets animated

► The Adventures of Tintin star talks technology and morphing into his childhood hero ► Says motion capture no different from live action acting

HEIDI PATALANO
SCENE@METRONews.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

Jamie Bell can handle just about any challenge he can face as an actor. After all, his first role ever was that of the iconic 14 year old dancing savant in Billy Elliot, back in 2000. Earlier this year, he fenced his way through complex fight scenes in icy rivers for the Roman epic The Eagle. And this winter, he will take on one of the most beloved characters of all time using motion-capture technology for The Adventures of Tintin.

It would seem that acting with a green screen might be a difficult thing to do, but Bell is quick to dismiss this as any kind of challenge.

"An actor who enters into a motion capture film will bring to the table exactly what they bring to the table in a live action film," he says.

As a young child, the now 25-year-old Brit had loved the Tintin comics, which served as an inspiration to him.

Not many people get to see themselves animated into one of their favourite fictional characters from childhood and for Bell, seeing animated scenes from Tintin was a little unsettling.

"It's weird seeing my facial articulations, all that stuff, on another person's body with another person's face, but I think that's only weird to me," he says.

► Actor Jamie Bell says it was strange seeing himself as a cartoon.

So long, uncanny valley!

► "The uncanny valley thing, which obviously for us to talk about, is death," says Bell. "An uncanny valley is when the eyes are not engaged in an emotional way. Luckily, they've managed to fix that. I feel like people are going to forget what uncanny valley means and that's what we're looking for."

Movie reviews

The Whistleblower

Genre: Drama

Director: Larysa Kondracki
Stars: Rachel Weisz, Monica Bellucci, Vanessa Redgrave

Positioned as a taught political thriller and moralistic tale, the Whistleblower tells the true story of one woman's fight to expose a human trafficking ring facilitated by UN staff in the aftermath of the Bosnian war. The split perspective between Rachel Weisz's titular American character and a young Eastern European girl forced into sex-slavery gets distracting, though it emphasizes the atrocities at hand. The political coverup at the film's centre never manages to fully grab the audience's attention. ● IAN GORMEY

Cave of Forgotten Dreams

Genre: Documentary

Director: Werner Herzog

Stars: Werner Herzog, Dominique Baffier, Jean Clottes

●●●½

Another hypnotically eerie documentary from Werner Herzog, complete with the director's signature narration that alternates from philosophical inquiry to sardonic jabs. His subject is the Chauvet cave, which boasts the oldest known cave paintings and sealed off to all but a few scientists for fear of contamination. Herzog films in 3D, allowing audiences to see how the ancient paintings interact with the jagged walls. The imagery is remarkable and he pads the running time with spear-throwing lessons. ● PHIL BROWN

Hollywood's next movie princess

► Appearing in this fall's action-thriller Abduction, Lily Collins is proving her acting prowess with some major gigs

► Next up, the new adaptation of Snow White

HEIDI PATALANO
SCENE@METRONWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

Maybe call her this year's Emma Roberts.

As the daughter of artist Phil Collins, 22-year-old Lily Collins may have had an inside track to Hollywood stardom, (like Roberts, niece of Julia), but that doesn't mean her early success was unearned.

This fall, Collins will be appearing alongside Taylor Lautner in action-thriller Abduction (Sept. 23rd) and she's currently shooting one of two Snow White films due to hit theatres next year.

She took a moment from the set of the Snow

White, currently being shot in Montreal, to chat with Metro.

In Abduction you seem to be running from lots of explosions and fires. Did Taylor Lautner have any advice on how to approach the stunt work?

He seems to be quite fearless in life anyway.

He'll just be standing and then all of a sudden he'll do a back flip because he can do that ...

HANDOUT

► Taylor Lautner and Lily Collins had their stunt workout out for them in Abduction.

He just jumps into things without being afraid so it kind of motivated me, with my lack of experience, to try to dive into it as well.

Tell us about shooting

Snow White.

I've been in Montreal since the end of May.

I'm very aware of the other project and I've read the script and I know that they're so completely different.

I am really excited for Kristen [Stewart].

I think she's perfect for that vision of Snow White and I'm very excited to take on the vision that [director Tarsem Singh] has for the movie.

Levine is showing them how it's done

► Adam Levine, judge and coach, may be the real winner on The Voice

PETER KRAMER/ASSOCIATED PRESS, FILE

Before joining NBC's The Voice, Adam Levine says some folks assumed he was some "singing bimbo that likes girls." So he's grateful to the show for providing a bit of clarification on his image.

"It was a nice opportunity to show my personality — that I have a brain," said the lead singer of Maroon 5. "It's also true: I am a bimbo and I like to sing and I like girls, but there's more to my personality; it's a little more dynamic than that, and I like to show that on the show. It's cool."

The singing competition — which also features Christina Aguilera, Cee Lo Green and Blake Shelton as music coaches — was a hit in its first season.

The four coaches chose teams of eight after an audition process that allowed them only to hear the contestant's voice, but not to see them. Once teams were whittled down to one contestant for each coach, Levine's mentee — the crooner Javier Colon — was crowned the winner.

The Voice helped showcase the playful and sillier side of the heavily-inked Levine. Band keyboardist Jesse Carmichael says Levine's presence on the show "was so positive for him definitely as a person, but for us as a band, too."

Now, the group is taking advantage of the buzz: They recently released Moves Like Jagger, which features Voice co-star Aguilera, and it will be the No. 1 song on the Billboard Hot 100 charts Thursday. The dance song is a departure for the pop-rockers, and they say they're rushing to get a new album out. In the past, the group released an album every three or four years.

"We're going to make it as quickly as we can (and) ride this wave of momentum," Levine said in an interview last week.

The second season of The Voice premieres after the Super Bowl on Feb. 5.

SOUND CHECK

ALAN CROSS
SCENE
@METRONews.ca

I didn't spend a lot of money on music over the summer because there wasn't much of anything to buy. Unless you're into metal, of course, but that's an entirely different column. But with the coming of Labour Day, the new release pipeline is starting to fill up. The fourth quarter is make-or-break time for both the labels and record stores.

Red Hot Chili Peppers/I'm With You (Out now): The first RHCP album in five years features new guitarist Josh Klinghoffer, the ninth person to hold down that gig in the band's 10-album career.

A solid record that should satisfy fans. Expect this one to live on rock radio for the next two years.

Lenny Kravitz/Black and White America (Out now): Like a lot of bass with your guitar funk? Then this will do fine. Features co-writes with Jay-Z and Canadian star Drake.

Stephen Malkmus and the Jicks/Mirror Traffic (Out Now): Malkmus, ex of lo-fi slacker kings Pavement, got Beck to produce his fifth album with excellent results.

The Rapture/In the Grace of Your Love (Tuesday): Managed by the same company as U2, the Rapture returns after a five-year absence with their fourth album of dance-punk.

St. Vincent/Strange Mercy (Sept 13): Ex Polyphonic Spree member Ann Erin Clark's third album already has hipster bloggers saying that this could one of the great records of the last half of 2011.

Tori Amos/Night of Hunters (Sept 20): Tori covers her favourite songs from the last 400 years. No, that's not a typo.

Blink-182/Neighbourhoods (Sept 27): More than two years after the big reunion, fans will finally get the promised reunion album.

Russian reality TV show sparks debate

► Set in Brooklyn's Brighton Beach neighbourhood, Russian Dolls has been called the Russian Jersey Shore or Real Housewives

A mother is lecturing her 23-year-old daughter about her love life, flailing a kitchen knife above her head for emphasis.

Mom's point: She'd like her immigrant daughter, from the former Soviet republic of Moldova, to marry a man with similar roots, keeping the family's East European Jewish tradition.

Alas, the daughter informs mom that she's already dating a Hispanic man. But she soon dumps him, on-camera, during a restaurant date.

The scene is captured in a new TV reality show called Russian Dolls, which premiered on the Lifetime cable network in August and airs Thursdays at 11:30 p.m. EST.

It's been called the Russian Jersey Shore or Real Housewives, featuring six women and two men, plus colourful extras like Anna Kosov, the mother. They're all from the former Soviet Union and either live or have lived in Brooklyn's Brighton Beach neighbourhood. But only two actually hail from Russia.

The show has drawn the wrath of neighbours and community leaders who say it creates a caricature of their immigrant world, turning cast members into "Russians in tacky clothes who do little more than eat, drink and party," says John Lisianski, founder of the new non-profit Russian-Speaking American Leadership Caucus and a budget analyst for the New York City Council.

The show's characters do represent "a small portion of our community," acknowledges Yelena Makhnin, executive director of the Brighton Beach Business Improvement District.

But she says her neighbourhood by the Brooklyn boardwalk is mostly "a very intelligent, very well educated, hardworking community."

The truth is, there's reality TV — and then there's re-

"This is not who we are. Even if it's of entertainment value, when people are watching this kind of material, it sticks with them, they start to believe it."

JOHN LISIANSKI, FOUNDER OF THE NEW NON-PROFIT RUSSIAN-SPEAKING AMERICAN LEADERSHIP CAUCUS

ality.

"Is that what it says?" asks Albert Binman, roaring with laughter as he reads a promo describing him as a spiffy 26-year-old, a "wheeler-dealer" who "parties every night" and "wants to marry a nice Russian girl."

"I do not party every night," he says. "And I want to marry a nice Jewish girl, not necessarily Russian. Or else, why did my parents send me to yeshiva?" A yeshiva is an Orthodox Jewish school.

A fight between two women in the cast erupted during interviews with The Associated Press at Rasputin.

"Get the (expletive) out!" screamed Marina Levitis, 35, who runs the glitzy cabaret with her lawyer husband.

The remark is aimed at Sveta Rakhman, a 47-year-old banker Levitis didn't know before the series.

The women developed a distaste for one another, displayed in a tense upcoming episode set in Rasputin.

In the series debut, Levitis, her husband and two young children walk out in the middle of an amateur belly-dancing performance by her 56-year-old mother-in-law, Eva Levitis. She "is just my husband's mother. She's nobody to me," Levitis says in the episode.

In fact, "we're a very close-knit family; everybody gets along just fine," Marina Levitis later tells the AP. But "on TV, you have to shock people, otherwise they're not going to watch it." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

► Oksana Grigorieva and Mel Gibson

After nearly two years of squabbles in the courtroom and the press, Mel Gibson and Oksana Grigorieva have reportedly reached a settlement in their custody battle over their one-year-old daughter, Lucia, according to Hollyscoop.

Gibson has agreed to pay Grigorieva $750,000, and he will also set up a trust fund for Lucia, who will continue to live with her mother in the multi-million-dollar home Gibson pays for until she turns 18, at which point the home will be sold and the proceeds will be placed in the trust. Also, neither Gibson nor Grigorieva are allowed to write books about each other, according to the settlement.

A storm brews in Bermuda

Believe it or not, sometimes I travel without a liquid reason — well, sort of. As you read this, I'm hanging out in a small pub in Bermuda with a large cocktail in hand.

Though there are lots of opportunities to buy wine on the island, fermented grape juice is definitely not the national drink. That spot is reserved for an indigenous version of rum, which is deep and dark, yet very well-rounded.

Gosling's Black Seal (750 mL, $26.80 - $32.99) has been making magic from sugar cane since 1806 and you can't visit Bermuda without tasting the mixed drink madness that is a Dark 'n Stormy.

It's a simple combination of one and a half ounces of Gosling's Black and ginger beer (a soft drink with a much richer and sharper flavour than ginger ale). In a tall glass filled with ice, add the rum and top with the ginger beer. Garnish with a lemon or lime wedge if (like me) you like a touch of citrus.

It's a bright, spicy cocktail worthy of the British heritage of the island. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS CANADA. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Sports in brief

The Titans and Chris Johnson have agreed to terms on a four-year contract extension ending the three-time Pro Bowl running back's holdout.

Tennessee confirmed Thursday the team had agreed to terms on the revised deal.

Johnson has led the NFL in yards rushing the past three seasons and refused to report to training camp without a new deal.

► The Eskimos purchased an ad in a McMahon stadium parking lot ahead of Monday's game.

Signs of a conflict

► 'We just wanted to have a little bit of fun,' says Eskimos marketing VP

The Edmonton Eskimos have fired a cheeky shot across the bow of the Calgary Stampeders ahead of Monday's Labour Day game.

The Eskimos bought ad space on a billboard at a McMahon Stadium parking lot. The billboard depicts an Edmonton Eskimo fan riding astride a Calgary Stampeders fan like a horse.

"EE-Hawwww! See you Monday Stamps fans," it says with the words "No Stampeders fans were (physically) harmed in the making of this billboard" in smaller type across the bottom.

"It's probably reverse psychology. They're the ones who are in the slump and we're the ones riding a wave right now."

STAMPEDERS LINEMAN DEVONE CLAYBROOKS

It's an audacious salvo from the Eskimos (5-3), who are chasing the Stampeders (6-2) for the CFL's West Division lead. Edmonton has lost three in a row, while the Stamps have won four straight.

Eskimos vice-president of marketing says the billboard is all about marketing and not a comment about on-field performance.

"We wanted to make sure that this wasn't a football thing. Our general manager and coaches didn't know about this," Duane Vienneau said from Edmonton.

The Stampeders marketing department countered Thursday with a newspaper ad that said, "Billboard at McMahon, $5,000; Ticket to the Labour Day Classic, $39; Putting your foot in your mouth: Priceless."

The Stampeders were mildly amused by the billboard and showed no signs that the Eskimos were getting under their skin. Calgary's quarterback is more motivated by Edmonton's 24-19 win over the Stamps at home July 23 than the billboard.

"It's about time the Battle of Alberta is back to this level where both teams are battling for first place now like it used to be in the '90s," Henry Burris said.

Hockey world looks for answers after deaths

A feeling of disbelief began giving way to introspection as the hockey world sought to come to terms with the loss of a third NHL tough guy in a matter of months.

Wade Belak's apparent suicide in a downtown Toronto hotel and condo sent shockwaves through the hockey community, prompting the NHL and NHL Players' Association to launch an immediate review of its programs to determine "whether concrete steps can be taken to enhance player welfare and minimize the likelihood of such events taking place."

Belak's death closely followed those of New York Rangers forward Derek Boogaard and Winnipeg Jets forward Rick Rypien. However, unlike those men, the 35-year-old gave off no signs of trouble prior to being found dead on Wednesday afternoon.

"From what I understand right now, there were no warning signs," NHLPA special advisor Mathieu Schneider said Thursday in an interview. "Maybe we'll learn something different over the next few weeks. But everyone that I've heard from so far is just in shock."

Belak leaves behind wife Jennifer and daughters Andie and Alex. The family will hold a private funeral service in Nashville on Sunday.

Drama ramped up for CFL Labour Day clashes

CFL EXTRA POINTS

DAN TOTH
CALGARY@METRONEWS.CA

Why can't every weekend be like the CFL's Labour Day Weekend? Historic matchups, ramped-up rhetoric and festering feuds are just a few of the highlights added to the games.

Most notable is the Edmonton-Calgary rivalry, now with an added twist after the Eks purchased ad space at McMahon Stadium that is sure to incite Calgary fans and only serve as inspiration for the Stamps.

The off-field stories are just as interesting elsewhere as the Winnipeg Blue Bombers travel to Regina.

With the Bombers owning the CFL's best record, fans of both teams will compete to see who can be most obnoxious. The traditional Toronto-Hamilton game is replaced by the Braley Bowl on Friday, as the Argos host the B.C. Lions. Both teams are owned by David Braley. Hamilton hosts Montreal Monday in a game dubbed the Labour Day Classic.

NFL fool's gold: You can't blame CFL players for chasing NFL jobs, but rarely does it work out in their best interests.

Roughriders receiver Andy Fantuz couldn't resist an offer to attend the Chicago Bears camp, despite a reportedly meagre signing bonus of $5,000.

That alone should have indicated they weren't very interested. It looks like Fantuz will be back in Regina soon after being under-utilized in Chicago.

Stray Tiger-Cats: After further review, Ivor Wynne Stadium isn't a first-er-upper after all.

Nostalgic fans might have been pleased to first learn the team and city planned to renovate the 80-year old gridiron temple in Hamilton.

But now everyone's come to their senses and decided to build a new stadium on the original location immediately following the 2012 season. Problem is, where will the Tabbies call home in 2013?
